Overview of the Series 7 Exam

The Series 7 exam, officially known as the General Securities Representative Exam, is administered by the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA). It is designed to assess a candidate's competency to perform the critical functions of a general securities representative. Passing this exam is a prerequisite for individuals who wish to sell a broad range of securities products, including corporate stocks and bonds, municipal securities, options, mutual funds, and variable contracts.

Exam Structure and Content

The exam consists of 125 multiple-choice questions that must be completed within 225 minutes. Candidates are tested on four major job functions:

- Seeks Business for the Broker-Dealer from Customers and Potential Customers
- Evaluates Customers' Financial Profile and Investment Objectives
- Provides Customers with Information About Investments, Makes Suitable Recommendations, Transfers Assets and Maintains Appropriate Records
- Obtains and Verifies Customers' Purchase and Sale Instructions and Agreements; Processes, Completes and Confirms Transactions

The test covers a wide array of topics including equity and debt instruments, mutual funds, retirement plans, options, taxation, and regulatory requirements. A passing score typically requires answering at least 72% of questions correctly.
