Hamlet's Dilemma

Hamlet is torn between his love for his father and his moral beliefs. He thinks about revenge but worries about the consequences. Here are a few things that Hamlet considers:

- Is revenge the right thing to do?
- What if I am wrong?
- How can I prove that Claudius is guilty?

This internal struggle makes Hamlet a very relatable character. Many children face choices that make them think about right and wrong, just like Hamlet.

Hamlet's Plan

To figure out if Claudius really is guilty, Hamlet decides to put on a play. He asks a group of actors to perform a play that mimics the way his father was murdered. He hopes that Claudius will react to the play and reveal his guilt.

The Play Within the Play

During the performance, the actors reveal a scene that mirrors King Hamlet's murder. When Claudius sees it, he becomes very upset and storms out of the theater. Hamlet sees this as a sign that the ghost was telling the truth!
