Origins of The Cheesecake Factory

The story of The Cheesecake Factory begins with its founder, David Overton. Raised in a family where food played a central role, Overton developed a passion for baking at a young age. After studying at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), he decided to pursue his love for cheesecakes. In 1972, Overton's mother, Evelyn, opened a small bakery in Los Angeles, where she sold homemade cheesecakes. This venture laid the groundwork for what would become a successful restaurant chain.
