Notable Quotes from The Fault in Our Stars by John Green

The novel "The Fault in Our Stars" by John Green is renowned for its collection of memorable quotes that eloquently express complex emotions and ideas. These quotes highlight the novel's poetic nature and its ability to address difficult topics with sensitivity and depth. Here are some of the most notable quotes from the book, each illustrating a unique aspect of the story and its characters.

“Some infinities are bigger than other infinities.”

This quote encapsulates the novel's exploration of love and time. It reflects the idea that even though life may be limited, the moments shared can be vast and meaningful. This metaphor resonates with readers as it challenges conventional ideas about quantity and quality in relationships and experiences.

“You don’t get to choose if you get hurt in this world... but you do have some say in who hurts you.”

This line addresses the inevitability of pain and suffering but emphasizes personal agency in relationships. It highlights the human condition’s vulnerability while offering a perspective on trust and emotional risk.

“I fell in love the way you fall asleep: slowly, and then all at once.”

One of the most quoted lines from the novel, this metaphor beautifully expresses the gradual yet overwhelming nature of falling in love. It captures the intensity and suddenness of emotional attachment in a relatable and poetic manner.

Other Memorable Quotes

- “My thoughts are stars I cannot fathom into constellations.”
- “The world is not a wish-granting factory.”
- “You are so busy being YOU that you have no idea how utterly unprecedented you are.”
- “That’s the thing about pain... it demands to be felt.”
