Catherine's early life was marked by the struggles of the Black Death, which ravaged Europe, causing widespread fear and devastation. This environment of uncertainty would profoundly shape her worldview and spiritual outlook.

Childhood and Spiritual Awakening

From a young age, Catherine exhibited a deep spiritual inclination. At the age of six, she experienced a mystical vision of Jesus, which marked the beginning of her spiritual journey. She began to devote herself to prayer and acts of penance, often engaging in fasting and other ascetic practices.

At the age of 16, Catherine joined the Dominican Tertiaries, a lay branch of the Order of Preachers.
