Additional Resources

1. Such a Fun Age by Kiley Reid

This contemporary novel explores themes of race, privilege, and identity through the story of a young Black babysitter and her well-intentioned employer. The narrative delves into the complexities of interracial relationships and societal expectations, much like the nuanced explorations found in The Vanishing Half. Reid's sharp, insightful prose brings to light the subtle dynamics of power and perception in modern America.

2. Americanah by Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie

A powerful story about race, immigration, and self-identity, Americanah follows a Nigerian woman who moves to the United States for college and later returns to Nigeria. The novel examines what it means to be Black in America and the struggle of navigating different cultural identities, paralleling the themes of racial passing and belonging in The Vanishing Half.

3. Passing by Nella Larsen

This classic novel from the Harlem Renaissance era centers on two light-skinned Black women who can "pass" as white, exploring the psychological and social consequences of racial passing. Its intimate portrayal of identity, secrecy, and societal pressures directly resonates with the core themes in The Vanishing Half, making it an essential companion read.

4. Homegoing by Yaa Gyasi

Spanning multiple generations and geographies, Homegoing tells the story of two half-sisters and their descendants—one sold into slavery, the other married to a British colonizer. The novel provides a profound look at the lasting impact of slavery and racial identity, echoing the multi-generational narrative style and exploration of heritage found in The Vanishing Half.

5. The Mothers by Brit Bennett

Also written by Brit Bennett, this debut novel focuses on a tight-knit Black community in Southern California and the secrets that shape the lives of its residents. With its rich character development and exploration of community, motherhood, and personal choices, it shares thematic similarities with The Vanishing Half.

6. Little Fires Everywhere by Celeste Ng

Set in an affluent suburban community, this novel investigates issues of race, class, and motherhood through the intertwined lives of two families. The story's exploration of identity and societal expectations complements the themes of family and belonging in The Vanishing Half.

7. The Color Purple by Alice Walker

A seminal work in African American literature, this novel chronicles the life of Celie, an African American woman in the early 20th century South. Themes of resilience, identity, and self-discovery resonate strongly with the emotional depth and exploration of Black womanhood found in The Vanishing Half.

8. Queenie by Candice Carty-Williams

This contemporary novel follows Queenie Jenkins, a young Black woman navigating love, family, and mental health in London. Its candid treatment of racial and cultural identity, along with personal struggles, aligns well with the intimate and societal themes explored in The Vanishing Half.

9. The Warmth of Other Suns by Isabel Wilkerson

A sweeping historical narrative about the Great Migration of African Americans from the South to the North and West, this nonfiction work provides context to the racial and social dynamics that underpin many stories like The Vanishing Half. Wilkerson's detailed storytelling enriches understanding of the historical backdrop influencing identity and migration.
