To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee is a profound exploration of racial injustice and moral growth set in the racially charged atmosphere of the American South during the 1930s. Through the eyes of young Scout Finch, Lee delves into the complexities of human behavior, emphasizing themes of prejudice, empathy, and the loss of innocence. This article will highlight significant quotes related to racism from the novel, along with their corresponding page numbers, to better understand the impact of racism in the storyline and its relevance to contemporary society.

Understanding Racism in the Context of the Novel

The narrative of To Kill a Mockingbird is anchored in the fictional town of Maycomb, Alabama, where the social hierarchy is heavily influenced by race. The book presents a microcosm of societal attitudes towards African Americans and the systemic racism that pervades the legal system. Key characters such as Atticus Finch, Tom Robinson, and Mayella Ewell represent various facets of this struggle, showcasing the moral dilemmas and harsh realities faced by individuals in a racially divided society.

Key Quotes on Racism

Here are some of the most impactful quotes from To Kill a Mockingbird that illuminate the theme of racism, along with their page numbers based on the commonly used editions.

"The one thing that doesn't abide by majority rule is a person's conscience."

Page 140

This quote by Atticus Finch highlights the importance of individual morality over societal norms. It serves as a reminder that standing against racism requires personal conviction, even when it goes against the prevailing attitudes of the community.

"I wanted you to see what real courage is, instead of getting the idea that courage is a man with a gun in his hand. It's when you know you're licked before you begin, but you begin anyway and see it through no matter what."

Atticus imparts this lesson to Jem, illustrating that true courage lies in fighting for justice, even when the chances of success are slim. This sentiment is particularly relevant in the context of defending Tom Robinson against racially motivated accusations.

“But there is one way in this country in which all men are created equal—there is one human institution that makes a pauper the equal of a Rockefeller, the stupid man the equal of an Einstein, and the ignorant man the equal of any college president. That institution, gentlemen, is a court.”

In his closing argument during the trial of Tom Robinson, Atticus expresses his belief in the justice system as a leveler in society. However, this ideal is challenged throughout the trial, exposing the deep-seated racism that influences the verdict.

“This case is based on a evil assumption—the assumption that all Negroes lie, that all Negroes are immoral beings, that all Negro men are not to be trusted around our women.”

Page 220

Atticus confronts the prejudiced views held by many in Maycomb, emphasizing that the accusations against Tom Robinson stem from deeply ingrained racist stereotypes rather than factual evidence.

5.

“As you grow older, you’ll see white men cheat black men every day of your life, but let me tell you something and don’t you forget it—whenever a white man does that to a black man, no matter who he is, how rich he is, or how fine a family he comes from, that white man is trash.”
