History and Development

Origins of the United Bible Societies

The United Bible Societies was founded in 1946, bringing together various Bible societies from around the world. Textual Basis

The UBS Greek New Testament is based on a wide range of manuscript evidence. Its textual criticism employs a rigorous methodology that seeks to establish the most accurate and reliable text of the New Testament. The UBS committee examines various manuscripts, including:

- Papyrus Manuscripts: Some of the earliest fragments of the New Testament, dating back to the second and third centuries.
- Uncial Manuscripts: Written in capital letters, these manuscripts date from the fourth to the ninth centuries.
- Minuscule Manuscripts: Smaller, cursively written texts that emerged from the ninth century onward.
- Lectionaries: Collections of scripture readings used in liturgical settings.

The UBS Greek New Testament primarily follows the Alexandrian text-type, which is considered to be one of the most reliable textual traditions. This approach contrasts with the Byzantine text-type, which has a more extensive history in the Orthodox Church and is often used in the King James Version of the Bible.
